

The Conflict with Furristan

part two of the Jake and Cleetus Saga™

July 8, 2020

chapter 1: a tough past

Furristan wasn't exactly a paradise. It's a small nation, which although prosperous and has a very low unemployment rate, has and still is, struggling with its past.

Furristan's past wasn't very pretty. It was once controlled by the furry hating nation called "Lelzistan." Lelzistan was at its peak was the biggest nation in the world. They were giant in colonization, and took pride in slaving Furrries and other minorities That the Lelzistan government hated.

The people of Furristan championed for independence for decades, until Lelzistan finally decided they were better off as their own nation. Since then, the furrries of Furristan grew there once impoverished nation into a prosperous land. It really was an amazing feat!

chapter 2: the ugly part

Furristan for the most part was pretty well off. They didn't really have any major problems and most problems were quickly resolved. However they have one problem which divides the population of Furristan.

See back when Furristan was a mere colony of Lelzistan, two major groups rised amongst the furrries.

One, known as the "hunnis," defended the Lelzistan government and when riots against the Lelzistan government broke out in Furristan, they proposed peace amongst the furrries and the Lelzistan government.

The other group, known as the “bunnis,” fiercely hated the Lelzistan government and would do anything to get Lelzistan out of Furristan. The bunnis were the ones who lead the riots against the Lelzistan government.

Now when Furristan gained independence, conflict arose between the two groups. The bunnis thought since they led the riots against Lelzistan, they should control all of the newly formed government of Furristan. Whereas the hunnis thought that they should control the newly formed government because they thought they could undo the damage done by the Lelzistan government for efficiently than the bunnis could.

Conflict amongst the bunnis and hunnis was about to break out until the leaders of both groups reached an agreement: the bunnis would control one half of the new formed government of Furristan while the hunnis will control the other half.

Although this didn’t result in direct conflict, many furries, both on the bunnis and the hunnis side were angered about this peace negotiation. They thought their group was better than the other.

The bunnis and hunnis don’t really fight about big issues luckily, but they fight on arbitrary issues, such as whether a bunni could date/marry a hunni and vice versa. Now lots of people on both sides are fine with one another but there are some that hate the opposite group.

chapter 3: “not as easy as it seems”

As Jake and Cleetus, who were both part of the bunnis group, were exiting the courtroom since they divorced, an angry mob, which was patiently waiting for Jake and Cleetus to exit the courtroom, attacked Jake and Cleetus.

Why?

Well remember how Jake and Cleetus are both bunnis? When they dated and married, no one was angry that they got married since they were both bunnis.

However, Jake's new spouse, Chinard, is a honni. And when people found out that Jake and Chinard (a honni and bunni) were dating, most didn't really care.

However, remember how some bunnis and hunnis hate the other group and fight over arbitrary issues? When they heard about it, they were angry.

"A bunni breaking a relationship with another bunni in favor of a hunni!?" cried the angry furries. They decided to form a mob, to attack Jake and Cleetus when they least expected it.

The attack was gruesome. Both were physically assaulted and had scars all over their body. Blood visibly rushing out of the body. A giant mob attacking two people. The soft cries of help, drowned out by the sounds of the mob.

It wasn't a very pretty scene but the aftermath was what you would expect. Law enforcement arresting and punishing members of the mob. Jake and Cleetus rushed to the hospital, predicting the chances of them surviving the attack depended on a coin toss.

But luckily, both recovered physically. But the emotional impact, that was still there, and wouldn't go anytime soon.

Jake was especially shaken up, way more than Cleetus. He was beginning to have doubts of what he should do.

“Should I really marry Chinard?” Jake thought to himself.

“Should I just break up with him?”

“Should I get back with Cleetus?”

“Should I leave Furristan, and move to a new country?”

“What should I do!?”

Jake recovered a few months later. He signed some paperwork, and left the hospital, unsure of what to do now, with his life.

the end?